Will County F Men Cut Down Rural Crime

The Frankfort township F-Men organization held their annual meeting and election of officers at the St. Mary's hall in Mokena Monday evening. In the absence of the Secretary Geo. Brandan, the minutes of the last annual meeting were read by Immanuel Marti, Treasurer of this organization. Geo. Mager, chairman, presided. The first order of business was the election of officers, and the following were unanimously re-elected by acclamation: Chairman, Geo. Mager; Vice-chairman, John Bettenhausen; Secretary, Geo. Brandan, treasurer, I. D. Marti; program chairman, Robert Maue; Captain William L. Knipple.

At the close of the election very interesting talks were given by chairman Martin Paape and Captain Geo. Haines of the Crete township F-men. Mr. Paape reviewed the work accomplished by their organization and showed several years ago crime rampant in Crete township. Aside from chicken stealing, cattle rustling and even murders were committed. The chief offenders were from the foreign element from Chicago Heights. After the farmers of the township were organized they started a concerted drive against operations of criminals in their territory and within three years they made 29 arrests and secured the same number of convictions.

The most outstanding case was that of the murder of Edward Pansa who was shot and killed by two foreigners from East Chicago and his wife was shot and left for dead, but managed to escape and went to the farm home of the murdered man's brother following which an alarm was spread and all the F-Men were summoned as well as state highway police, Will county sheriff's deputies, and Cook county sheriff's with the result that the murderers were rounded up within a few hours after the crime was committed and were convicted. One of the criminals killed himself by hanging in the Will county jail and the other one was condemned to the electric chair and was electrocuted last summer. It was through the perfect organization and cooperation of the F-Men of Crete that these criminals were brought to speedy justice.

Captain Haines gave a graphic and thrilling account of his encounters with a very undesirable foreign element from Chicago Heights. He stated a roving band would steal not only chickens, live stock from the farmers, but even dug up potatoes at night, as well as vegetables and fruit. A system that had been used to get free chickens was, three men would ride in a car, on each side of the front fenders of the car armed with shot guns and whenever they would spy a chicken or duck along the road side or even within the field of a farmer they would shoot this poultry and quickly throw it in their car and drive on. On day Captain Haines waited for hunters of this character and when they came within his range he opened fire on them with a shot gun. The buck shot peppered these hunters and they beat a very hasty retreat and failed to show up again.

Another time Captain Haines had purchased a valuable heifer and a short time later found it shot to death. He determined not to allow any more hunting on his premises. A short time later five foreigners appeared on his farm, shooting at everything in sight. Armed with a pump gun, Captain Haines went out in the field, rounded up the five hunters and asked them who gave permission to hunt on his farm. They became abusive and surly, saying that they had a hunting license which gave them permission to hunt where they please.

When Captain Haines remonstrated, they levelled the barrels of their five shot guns at him and threatened to shoot him. He was too quick on the trigger, however, and sent off a blast with his pump gun, the shot blowing the caps off the heads of two of the hunters and then they started to run across the field with the Captain in pursuit.

When they reached the end of a field they found an obstruction in the way of a new barbed wire fence but that did not stop them. They tore down the wire in their excitement to get away from the hostile farmer. This seemed to have cured trespassing on farms. Another had feature that the F-Men stamped out was a method used to secure property at auction sales without paying for it.

Her remains were removed from the Klemm Funeral home of Manhattan to her home in Frankfort where funeral services were held Friday, February 10 at 9:15 a. m., then to the St. Mary's church in Mokena at 10 a. m. and burial was in St. John's cemetery, Mokena.

Orland Swamps Mokena 71-46

The Orland Park Heavyweights swamped Mokena 71-46 in a league game Sunday at Tinley. Orland scored at ease at all times and this great scoring feat shows that Orland has a very tough team and the other teams will have a hard time against them.

Orland's scoring was very much divided as E. Utte, Nicolai, Steinmetz and Hettling scored 20, 15, 1 and 8 points respectively to lead this division. Next Sunday Orland will be after their 5th straight league game when they play Beecher at 2:30 p. m. at Tinley. The lineup for Sunday's game was as follows:

Orland—71
E. Utte, f.	9	20
H. Utte, f.	2	10
Nicolai, f.	7	12
Hallinim, f.	1	0

What Is A Circus?

Fun for the whole family and Ma, why bother with supper—there will be plenty of eats, yes even peanuts to feed the animals.

What a circus—different from any you've ever seen.

As an added attraction there will be two Boxing Bouts. In the light weight class there will be Jaw Breaker Jackie from back of the Yards vs. Dynamite Donnie from Sweden. In the heavy weight class there will be Scarlet Slugger Spiess vs. Abbe the Battling Blond.

The Singing Midgits from Siam will be there and several other attractions. Pop Corn, Pop and candy—everything to help make a circus. When is a Circus not a Circus? Friday night February 10, will answer that.

Yours till Niagara Falls, or better yet, till tonight. We'll be seeing you!

Complaints Made Against Dangerous Snowball Practice

Complaints were made at the Mokena village board meeting Tuesday evening that certain students from outside of the village who drive the cars to school load up a bunch of youngsters and have them hang on the outside of the car throwing snow balls at the other students, as they are on their way home after school. Youngsters driving these cars are understood to be under age and drive at a rather reckless rate of speed with the possible danger that some of the younger children might fall off and be seriously hurt.

The village board instructed Everett Cooper, village clerk, to write Gerald Dunn asking his cooperation to stop the matter complained of.

Allis-Chalmers Farm Day Feb. 17

February 17th will be Allis-Chalmers Farm Machinery Day in Frankfort when an all day demonstration will be held at the A. C. Bauch garage in Frankfort. Free lunch and moving sound pictures.

I like to see a man proud of the place in which he lives. I like to see a man who lives in it so that his place will be proud of him. Be honest, but hate no one; overturn a man's wrongdoing, but do not overturn him unless it must be done in overturning the wrong. Stand with a man while he is right, and part with him when he goes wrong.

Mokena Civic Asso., Offers Aid To Village Board

For the first time in the history of Mokena a civic body has offered to cooperate with the city fathers to procure needed improvements for the village. At the meeting of the Mokena village board Tuesday evening Stokes Nebeker and Dean Rueckert of the Mokena civic association offered the cooperation of the civic body with the Mokena village board to secure needed improvements on first street and other streets of the community.

The front street has been given the most attention within recent years and the citizens feel that the gas tax money should now be spent on some of the other streets. Accordingly the Mokena Civic association is going to take the matter up with the state highway department and see what can be done to have the gas tax funds allocated for improvements of other main artery streets of the village.

The village board greatly appreciates the fine spirit of the Civic association and also welcomes suggestions and visits from any interested citizens of the community at their regular board meetings held every first Tuesday evening of the month.

Frankfort Shuts Off Delinquent Water Users

The Frankfort village board at their regular meeting held Monday evening decided it was necessary to take drastic actions to enforce the collection of water rents inasmuch as all warnings and past notices sent to delinquent water users have failed to bring any response, as a result the village board has decided to enforce the village ordinance on this particular matter to the limit.

The village tapper has been authorized to shut off the water supply of all delinquent water users and this to become effective at once. The amount of revenue outstanding for water used and not paid for will run into quite a large sum and in order to secure the necessary revenue for the operation of the water department it is absolutely essential that all outstanding bills must be paid up before any further service can be rendered.

Uncle Hy Says:

The Farm, Feb. 4th, 1939.

Dear Hy:

Got your letter and am sorry to say that I did not get in to show you my car, you see I had to come in Wednesday and I could not find a place to park my car so I had to go down to New Lenox to get my groceries where I could park somewhere besides the middle of the street. I just thought at the time, what a good thing it was that there was no fire in Mokena during last week for you would not have been able to save it. You sure have saved two nice old monuments on Front Street above the garage, tho, I suppose you are keeping those for some of the boys that go off to Honolulu so they can have a room and a nice forest to play around in. Your Aunt Lule says she hopes you don't get like a lot of men she knows that send their wives to church while they play pinochle and anyway why shouldn't women smoke even if it is a pipe like Aunt Sue did for she could swing a rolling pin with any of the men?

By cracky I can remember when your druggist could do a mean hoe-down on Madison Street when he was so darn busy he had to have a lunch pail sent to him. Say what have you got now? I can remember not so knocked out silver cups playing golf and you had some dances down in the woods you had some eaters that saved Mokena from oil fires, now they all get stuck in a little snow. Loks like you are slipping.

I'll try to see you when I come in

GEO. LAUFFER DIES SUDDENLY IN HOSPITAL

George L. Lauffer of Grant Park, former Mokena farmer and one time tax collector of Frankfort township, died last Saturday morning at three o'clock in the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, following a brief illness caused by gall bladder trouble. He also figured in a serious truck accident on the Dixie highway near Beecher last Wednesday when another truck skidded on the icy road and crashed into his truck. Mr. Lauffer suffered from shock but was reported not to have sustained any serious injury. The driver of the other truck was fatally hurt and died soon after.

George Lauffer was the son of George Lauffer, Sr., and was born in Orland township February 24, 1884. He was baptised and confirmed in the St. John Evangelical church of Mokena by the late Rev. C. Schaub.

June 2, 1914, he was united in marriage with Miss Florence Bristol of Chicago. To this union five children were born, namely: Bristol, George, Alice, Oliver and Adelaide who with the widow survive. Other survivors are 17 nephews, 17 nieces, his mother, Mrs. Bertha Lauffer, four brothers, Daniel, Louis, Emil and William; one sister, Mrs. Caroline Andres. The father George Lauffer, Sr., and two sisters, Emma Andres and Lena Lauffer preceded him in death.

Funeral services were held from the Hirsch Funeral Home in Tinley Park at 1:30 p. m. Monday and concluded in the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena with Rev. Theo. Haeefe officiating. Burial was made in the St. John Cemetery south of Mokena.

Mr. Lauffer was engaged in the elevator and trucking business in Grant Park in recent years.

5 Candidates In New Lenox Road Com. Race

New Lenox township politics are near the boiling point with the approach of the caucus to be held February 25. Five candidates have their hats in the ring for the office of highway commissioner. Roy Garman former garage man of New Lenox is conducting a very intensive campaign for this office. Mr. Garman is quite well known, having been in business in the garage now operated by Otto Bormet.

William Moore, life time resident of New Lenox and Homer townships is also a candidate for this office. Mr. Moore has been connected with the county highway department for the past five years.

William Hafka also a life-time resident of New Lenox township and widely known as a successful farmer, is also in this race. Mr. Hafka has not sought public office before and his many friends induced him to enter the race.

Leonard Willis, residing in the village of New Lenox is also conducting a campaign for this office.

A. W. Walsh present highway commissioner, is up for renomination. Friends of Mr. Walsh say that he has fulfilled his office duties in a very capable manner and feel that he should be returned to this position.

Aside from the hot race for the commissionership it is understood there is going to be a spirited contest for the office of supervisor.

Fred A. Francis, present incumbent, a candidate for re-nomination while Ernest Oram, one time highway commissioner of New Lenox township, has also entered the race for the supervisorship.

These two major offices are claiming the chief interest of the voters at this time. A school trustee is also to be nominated.

Tinley Station Agent Marries Kentucky Girl

Anthony Kososki, agent at the Rock Island depot at Tinley Park and Miss Elizabeth English of Ammons, Ky., were quietly married at the rectory of St. Geo. Catholic church in Palos Park with the Rev. C. C. Boyle officiating at 6:30 o'clock last Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Bettenhausen of Tinley Park witnessed the ceremony. Upon the return of the newlyweds to Tinley Park the same evening, the fire department sprung a surprise on them. As the newlyweds were driving in their car near their home in Tinley they suddenly found the street blocked at one end and the fire truck coming from the rear. When the fire apparatus got closer they strated to blow the sirens and horns and tin pans were brought into action and their was a merry din.

The surprise chivari was considered quite an honor by the bridal couple and reciprocating Mr. Kososki sponsored a party at the village hall for the benefit of the firemen on Tuesday evening. Plenty of refreshments and eats were served. Mr. and Mrs. Kososki left last Friday evening on a short honeymoon trip to Buffalo, N. Y. returning Sunday evening. The groom has been located at Tinley for a number of years as the Rock Island station agent. The bride is a school teacher, teaching in the country school near Tinley Park.

Mokena Water Main Project Faces Obstacle

Mokena village board has received word from the state board of health at Springfield that they are ready to OK extension of the water mains along Wolf road but with the one provision that the village board guarantee that no outside toilet vaults shall exist within 150 feet of the village well. The toilets on the village property have been removed and the toilet pits have been covered but this does not meet with all the requirements of the board of health as there is still one outside toilet vault less than 150 feet from the well. This vault is on private property and the owner feels that to build an addition to his home in order to provide for an inside toilet would be too expensive for him. As the matter now stands, the state board of health has been apprised of the situation and has been asked to send a representative here to look over the situation and see if any compromise could be effected. As soon as the board is advised when this representative can come a call for a special board meeting will be issued.

The new extension would provide more adequate fire protection for the residents along Wolf road in the village limits and would also mean 8 additional new village water users, which would help considerably toward the income of the water department. The extension in question is to be constructed as a WPA project.

It is felt that if the project is not constructed at this time the federal funds for this type of work may be exhausted and no more aid could be secured from that quarter.

Father and Son Banquet at Marley

The Marley Brotherhood will sponsor a Father and Son banquet at the Marley church Friday night, Feb. 24, at 7 p. m.

The speaker of the evening will be Mr. G. N. Hufford, superintendent of schools, Joliet.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO TINLEY PARK RESIDENT

Marie A. Schellhase, nee Hoffmann, was born in the province of Posen, Germany, November 6, 1873, and passed from this life in her home in Tinley Park after a heart attack Saturday, February 4, 1939, at the age of sixty-five years, two months and twenty-nine days. As a girl she was confirmed in the State Church of Germany, learning the scriptures and the truths about our Heavenly Father that were so helpful to her as she was buffeted upon the sea of life.

When she reached the age of nineteen she left her native land with her family, and sojourned to America, locating in Chicago. This new country became as dear to her as her fatherland. She loved it, she enjoyed its benefits, she enriched its resources.

June 8th, 1895, she was united in marriage to William Schellhase of this community. Upon taking up her residence in the environments of Tinley Park she united with the Orland township M. E. church to which she was a faithful member through storm and calm for forty-three years. To the union there were born six children, two of which preceded her in death. One, a daughter, Edna, in infancy and a son, Arthur, at the age of four. She is survived by her husband, William, and four children, Anna, now, Mrs. Adam Breitbarth William Schellhase, and Mamie, now Mrs. Harry Brandan, all of Tinley Park environs, and Walter Schellhase of Blue Island.

Her six grandchildren, Walter Lee, Waneta Anne and Lida Mae Schellhase, Vernon and Lloyd Brandan and Richard Schellhase will deeply miss their grandmother who was one of their dearest and best friends.

Of her family, only her sister, Mrs. George Rauhut of Chicago, survives.

Her life was the picture of a frank christian who strove to rear her children in the fear of the Lord, who held her church in high esteem and was almost untiring in her work to cheer and help others. Seven years ago she retired from active life on the farm and moved to the village of Tinley Park Retirement from this active life was quite sudden and for a time of about three years, the Process of readjustment was not conducive to what seemed happiness. What the readjustment to the quiet retired life was made, she was content to help others wherever, and however she could.

Background for the Coming Crisis: France vs. Italy in Mediterranean

Rebel Victory in Spain Leaves Il Duce Free to Press Demands

By JOSEPH W. LABINE

As the first month of 1939 drew to a painful close all Europe sat watching bombs burst over Spain. Barcelona, the Loyalist capital, fell by inches before Rebel troops who claimed to be Spaniards but came largely from Italy and Germany. One of the closest observers of this holocaust was Edouard Daladier, premier of France.

For M. Daladier knew that once Barcelona fell, Italy's hands would be freed from their Spanish obligation. Then Benito Mussolini would be ready to press the program of expansion which he hopes will make Italy the dominant nation of the Mediterranean.

France would be the chief victim of this expansion because French and Italian interests clash at several key points in northern Africa. Each wishes to rule the Mediterranean, France because she has done so for 20 years, and Italy because her Fascist government believes this is Italy's "destiny."

What of the Future?

Moot questions are therefore pushed to the front as Spain's civil war draws near its inevitable Rebel victory. Will the romantic Mediterranean be Europe's next battleground? Will France and Italy come to blows over proprietorship of Tunisia, Corsica, Nice and Savoy? Will their conflict over Suez canal proprietorship and the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad draw Great Britain into the battle?

The background for this crisis-to-come dates to 1915. That year, in the treaty of London, England and France won Italy's aid against the central powers by promising to split Germany's African colonies should the Allies win.

That Italy once had a grievance is the opinion of most European observers. At Versailles the treaty of London was completely overlooked. Not until 1924 did Great Britain get around to ceding Italy the unimportant territory of Jubaland, and that under protest. Stubborn France held out until 1935 when Premier Pierre Laval agreed to give Italy a worthless strip of desert south of Libya, another between French Somaliland and Italian Eritrea, and the island of Doumeirah.

Treaty Never Ratified.

The Mussolini-Laval treaty had few merits and even less honor. It was never ratified and therefore the ceded territories have never been turned over to Italy.

Since 1936 Italy has been busy consolidating her Mediterranean gains and fighting the Spanish civil war. If the past two years have nurtured imperialistic aims in the

THE MEDITERRANEAN—Map showing how France and Italy now dominate north African lands, also how Italy, by gaining control of Tunisia, could easily shut off commerce through the sea by a blockade.

Fascist breast they went unspoken because Mussolini knew he was too weak to fight.

But last year's German-Czech crisis changed that. One of its most outstanding results was the shift of European domination from France and Britain to Italy and Germany, resulting in a subsequent parade of Franco-British "appeasement" offers. Today Mussolini is in a position to dictate the outcome of the Spanish war. Moreover he can afford to stick out his neck on territorial demands against France, knowing powerful Germany stands behind him.

Dictators Must Drive.

This is not only Mussolini's privilege, but his duty as well. For almost two years the Italians have watched enviously while daring

Adolf Hitler plucked territorial plums at the other end of the Rome-Berlin axis. Mussolini has always given the Reichsfuehrer his moral support but in return Italy has received nothing. If Mussolini wishes to retain his dictatorship he must soon begin asserting himself for new colonies.

Germany is willing that this should happen. It would be advantageous for Hitler to have world attention focused on a Mediterranean conflict during the next few years while he proceeds quietly to carve a Nazi-dominated republic out of the vast southeastern Ukraine. Meanwhile Berlin could conveniently send Nazi "volunteers" to aid Italy without risking official involvement.

Italy's campaign thus far has been very crude. It began last November 30, an especially bleak day when France was quaking in fear of a complete labor strike and when Premier Daladier was clawing tooth and nail to stay in power after France began feeling the disastrous backwash of the Czech crisis. For the first time since 1936 a French ambassador was in Rome, Andre Francois-Poncet having been shifted from Germany to Italy after Paris belatedly recognized Mussolini's Italian conquest.

'Tunisia! Nice! Corsica!'

M. Francois-Poncet celebrated his arrival by attending a session of the Italian chamber of deputies where Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano (Mussolini's son-in-law) was to make a speech. Hardly had his address started before two deputies jumped to their feet and began yelling "Tunisia! Tunisia!" From the galleries came cries, too, not only for "Tunisia!" but also for "Corsica! Nice! Savoy!"

Though he sat quietly through the demonstration, M. Francois-Poncet lost no time demanding an explanation. Italian officialdom disowned all responsibility but the controlled Fascist press picked up the echo from the chamber of deputies and has been amplifying it ever since under direction of Propagandist Virginio Gayda.

There have been daily threats; there have been insults, such as that in the Rome newspaper, Il Tevere, which pictured 40,000,000 Italians "spitting" on France while "the Third Republic (France) is patiently wiping her face with newspapers." There have been well substantiated reports of Italian troop concentrations on the west frontier of French Somaliland.

The net result has been to defeat Italy's purpose. France, only a few months ago torn by strikes and ready to oust Premier Daladier, is today better united than at any time in the past five years. Desperately proud, the French now dislike to discuss the settlement proposals Paris first made last summer, because such discussions would leave the impression that France yielded to force.

France May Yield.

These proposals, incidentally, are substantially what many observers think Italy is hinting for today in her undiplomatic fashion. They include Italian participation in administration of the Suez canal, Italian control of the railroad leading from Italy's Addis Ababa to France's Djibouti on the Red sea, and more privileges for Italian residents of Tunisia.

But if Mussolini presses his advantage after Barcelona, and if Germany wins not only the Ukraine but her African colonies lost during the World war, the Mediterranean will almost positively be the scene of Europe's next fireworks. Britain would be drawn in because she could not afford to have her "lifeline" broken by Italian capture of Tunisia. This would enable Mussolini to throw a blockade from Tunisia to Pantellaria island to Sicily, completely controlling traffic from Gibraltar to the Suez canal.

Such possibilities are admittedly more theoretical than practical. But within a few weeks the story of peace or war on the Mediterranean may be told.

No chance for Joseph P. Kennedy to succeed Henry Morgenthau Jr., as secretary of the treasury . . . Mr. Kennedy, it seems, is all washed up . . . Big insurance companies next concern to be investigated . . . Vermont governor stirs up New Deal over flood control.

WASHINGTON.—Joseph P. Kennedy will not be secretary of the Treasury while Franklin D. Roosevelt is President. This will remain true whether Henry Morgenthau Jr. retires or not. In the language of the ward politicians, Kennedy is washed up so far as this administration is concerned. Morgenthau is just as strong as at any time in the last few years. If he retires at all it will be of his own volition.

J.P. Kennedy

The driving force behind the move to get Morgenthau out of the treasury does not come from the White House. It comes from Henry Morgenthau Sr., father of the secretary. The elder Morgenthau thinks Henry has given enough of his time to the government. He is proud of his son.

Although the secretary of the treasury has never made any public statements which seemed to disapprove of any New Deal policies, always was extremely loyal to the President, and carried out White House orders to the utmost of his ability, nevertheless he has stood out as one of the sound apples in the New Deal barrel. As one or two New Deal critics have put it, he has seemed to be a sane man entirely surrounded by crackpots.

In most of the battles waged inside the New Deal on spending, pump priming, relief, taxation and harassing of business, Morgenthau has always been on the conservative side fighting as long as there was a chance, but loyally obeying the decision, once F.D.R. made it.

On Side of Orthodoxy in Fights on Fiscal Affairs

Most important of all, the news of these encounters, these fights of Morgenthau on the side of orthodoxy in fiscal affairs—as for example budget balancing—never came from Morgenthau. It is very probable that Morgenthau's battles inside the New Deal would never have become known had it not been for his opponents in these battles, who fed the stories out to sympathetic newspaper men while they were still hot with indignation against Morgenthau's stubborn arguments in favor of the old-fashioned thrift theory of economics.

Incidentally, Morgenthau has been almost a lone wolf. Even some of those who agreed with his economics, for example Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, have not liked him overmuch.

But through it all Morgenthau has remained the close friend of the President. Mrs. Morgenthau has been the close friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, and of their loyalty and devotion there is no question whatever.

Joe Kennedy, curiously enough, has not seemed to realize in what a whispering gallery he was living. This is strange, for he was obliged to listen to volumes of advice about the dangers of what he might say while the State department was giving him the college course in diplomacy to which it subjects all political appointees in the diplomatic service before permitting them to sail for foreign capitals.

Kennedy, it is very reliably reported, has made some very pointed remarks about the New Deal to certain American friends. And these, with extraordinary promptness, have been repeated to F.D.R. by gentlemen who would be pleased to have Kennedy's foot slip.

Big Insurance Companies Soon to Be Investigated

Very shortly the monopoly investigating committee will turn its attention to the big insurance companies. Ever since there has been a New Deal there has been an eagerness on the part of the left wingers to get after these huge financial institutions.

The two things that will be gone into very thoroughly, according to the frank statements of those interested, will be the investment policy of the managements of these companies, and the loans that the companies make on policies. A bitter battle is expected here, for the insurance companies have a good deal of the pride of authorship or achievement, so to speak, in their investments, and they feel very strongly against liberalizing their policy loan system.

This last can be dismissed so briefly that it will be stated first. Insurance officials usually favor a 6 per cent interest rate on such loans. There are two major considerations. One is to make the loans easy to obtain. That is for the policy holder's benefit and to make the holding of policies an advantage. But the other is to make the interest rate high, so that the borrower will have an incentive to pay off the loan, thereby clearing his policy, and thus maintain the maximum of insurance protection, which of course is the main object of the policy, and the main business of the company.

New Dealers do not like the high rate, because one of the objectives of New Deal economics is to put interest rates down. This policy has already hurt the insurance companies enormously. It has reduced the interest rate on bonds which formerly paid much greater sums into the insurance company treasuries. As a natural result, this has reduced very heavily the dividends paid to policy holders, or credited on their policies in the form of additional insurance.

Terrific Falling Off of Investment in Utilities

Not only has New Deal policy reduced the rate of interest on government bonds, but it has reduced the interest on the bonds of private corporations. This phase was "planned" that way. But another phase was not. Yet as a result of government competition with the electric industry there was a terrific falling off of new investment in the utilities, and as a result of S. E. C. restrictions and other New Deal activities, private corporations issued so few new bonds that it became a problem for the insurance companies, or for that matter any investors, to place their funds.

As a result, bonds already outstanding, which were known to be good, advanced in price, thus lowering the return on any new purchases that the insurance companies might make.

Aiken Stirs Bitterness

Inside New Deal Circles

There is more bitterness inside New Deal circles over the stand taken by Gov. George D. Aiken of Vermont on the flood control and power situation than is generally realized. The real tip-off of the feeling is revealed in the outburst on the floor of the house, just after Aiken took his stand, by Rep. John E. Rankin of Mississippi.

Rankin charged that Aiken was making a bid for the Republican presidential nomination, with the backing of the "New England power trust."

Rep. Charles A. Plumley of Vermont defended his governor's attitude, saying that it was a question of whether the federal government had a right to take state property without the state's consent.

Actually neither presented the whole picture, and the White House is not giving it either. Boiled down, New England has a serious flood problem. It is bigger than any one state. Headwaters in both New Hampshire and Vermont pour into rivers, particularly the Connecticut, which flood out territory in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Hence there is plenty of reason for regarding this whole Connecticut valley as one problem, and a federal problem, rather than a problem for the individual states concerned. Actually there would be no dispute about this if it were not for the power angle.

Would Make Connecticut Valley Miniature T. V. A.

But the New Deal would like to make a miniature TVA of the Connecticut valley. Whether it goes far or not, it is determined to control the power situation involved in any dam construction for the purpose of flood relief. The purposes of the administration are perfectly simple. It wants to handle that power. It wants to fix rates somewhat comparable to TVA rates.

It is not surprising that the White House and public power advocates do not understand this situation. On the surface it would seem as if most of the New Englanders, and particularly the Vermont consumers, would be as eager for cheaper electric rates as the people of the Tennessee valley towns. But for some reason there is very little evidence of this, despite the allegation that the electric rates in Vermont are much higher than those charged by the private companies in the Tennessee valley prior to TVA.

But an extraordinary states' rights feeling has developed in Vermont. They will do their own regulating, they seem to say.

It may be recalled that a while back Governor Aiken was hailed in many quarters as a new type of Republican, a member of a progressive group which was going to lead the G. O. P. out of its reactionary morass. In fact he was frequently mentioned as a presidential possibility.

So the fact that he is attacking the New Deal on the electric power question, which is one of the very first among the many "progressive" issues, is very annoying to the White House, to Sen. George W. Norris, who himself was once regarded as the liberal White Hope of the Republican party; and to John Rankin, leader of the utility baiters in the house.

Smart Dresses for Home and Runabout

HERE'S a practical, slenderizing dress that large women will thoroughly enjoy for their busiest days of housework. And a trim little bolero frock that's gay and fresh as a spring morning, just the thing for shopping, business and general wear.

Comfortable House Dress.

This dress is so easy to make that you'll turn out half a dozen of it in practically no time; it's a diagram design that you can complete in a few hours. And it's so easy to work in that you won't be satisfied with less than half a dozen. Wide armholes, a darted waistline that looks slim, a skirt with sufficient width, all assure freedom for action. It's easy to put on, too, as well as to iron, because it buttons down the front. Percale, calico and gingham are good materials for this.

Tailored Bolero Dress.

Even without the sleeveless bolero, this dress is a charming style for runabout and street wear. The darted waistline makes you look slim and supple. A scalloped closing, edged with braid or binding, and puff sleeves narrowed into the arm by shirring, complete the effect of youthful charm. Make this right now of flat crepe, silk print or thin wool. Then repeat it later in summer cottons; it's a design that you'll use many, many times.

The Patterns.

No. 1615 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4 3/4 yards of 35-inch material, with 1/2 yard for cuffs in contrast.

No. 1674 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14 requires 5 1/4 yards of 39-inch material, with 3/8 yards of braid to trim.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Tale of Two Brothers

A man of 75 told a judge the other day that he had only had one brother—and he died 125 years ago.

His father, it seems, was 70 when this man was born in 1863. He had been married before—at 20—and had had a child, who died a day or two after birth, in 1813.

So the man told the truth. Only his brother was really a step-brother.

A longish "step," too.

Only Clergymen Were Immune From Comic Valentine of 90's

Why St. Valentine's day should at once be an occasion for tearful sentimentalism and raucous buffoonery is not the mystery it appears at first glance.

The bleeding heart decorated with old lace and scented with lavender—once a favorite token of love—sprang from an early Roman festival in honor of the goddess, Februa Juno, which Christians abolished by way of making it less objectionable. But then it became too sentimental, which paved the way for the cheap comic valentines which sprang into favor late last century.

As celebrated in England and Scotland, St. Valentine's day brought maids and bachelors together at a festival where they drew lots to discover which maid would be each youth's "valentine." These imaginary engagements lasted for a year, during which the young man was bound to the service of his valentine. Sometimes they ended in real engagements but more often one or the other party was dissatisfied with his lot. This gave rise to a custom of ridiculing the valentine custom, ably expressed by the satirist, Alexander Pope:

The sentimental valentine, heavy with lavender and old lace, which grew from an early custom.

"You struttin' cockatoo of man
You are my Valentine, I know.
And for a year I'll have to see
Your face and form wher'er I go.
But get this through your leather pate—

A year is all you'll get of me,
For after that you'll get the gate
And never mair my face shall see."

In later years St. Valentine's day has developed into a time for exchanging gifts, though the comic valentine has retained most of the favor it enjoyed 30 or 40 years ago. In those days nobody in the community was immune from receiving one of these anonymous shafts of criticism except members of clergy.

The name, Valentine, comes from a religious of the Third century who reconciled lovers by his interest in their lives. Because of this interest, and because his life ended in martyrdom, he became the patron saint of lovers.

Modern Berlin Retains Unique Native Habits

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

Berlin is without the slums found in many large cities of the world, far less venerable.

Many unfit dwelling houses on narrow streets have been torn down. In their place stand settlements—groups of apartments offering decent, moderately priced quarters for workers' families. Nearly 3,000 have been constructed. Some have small gardens attached.

In addition to the city-developed settlements are some huge ones sponsored by industrial enterprises. The outstanding example is that of the Siemens company, that colossal producer of electrical machinery, which was established in 1847. Its Berlin plants employ more than 120,000 workers. Siemens Stadt has grown up around the works, forming an integral part of Berlin. There are model apartments, schools, hospitals, churches, playgrounds, and theaters.

The Allgemeine Elektrizitaets-Gesellschaft, the General Electric company of Germany, has likewise gone far in developing proper housing for its 47,000 Berlin employees.

The task of aiding the needy is being largely handled by the winter aid campaign. There are in the whole of Germany one and a quarter million voluntary workers contributing their services, which has kept administrative costs of the organization down to 1 per cent of the total sum handled.

Principal among the methods of raising money are lotteries, the sale of badges and little handmade ornaments of negligible cost, and the one-dish meal once a month in private houses, restaurants and hotels.

Away from the City

"Where on earth are all the people?" you find yourself asking as you walk through the deserted streets on a fine Sunday afternoon. Certainly at this same hour the Champs Elysees is thronged with a chattering, strolling mob.

But this is not France! We are in Germany, land of probably the most devoutly nature-loving people of the Northern Hemisphere. The Berliner, with his sisters and his cousins and his aunts—and grandfather and grandmother thrown in—has joined in a daybreak exodus to woods and lakes.

Those who own some sort of boat go by the water route. By eight o'clock rivers and canals swarm with craft. Faltboote, small folding canoes with double-bladed paddles, predominate. In the motley van are also canoes of American pattern, Construction work goes rapidly on the new broad highway that will bisect Berlin from west to east and is a part of the vast road-building program undertaken by Hitler. In 1938 a total of 1,864 miles were added to the country's system of express motor highways.

sailing boats of widely diversified rigs, motorboats no bigger than bathtubs sputtering along by the thrust of outboard kickers, sleek, rangy launches, small yachts gliding with clever arrogance through crowded lanes. At intervals the ranks open up for the passage of river steamers plying from Berlin's center to outlying resorts.

Lining the shores are series of tent cities, aggregations of wood-and-canvas week-end domiciles. Huddled together at the water's edge stand the units of these flimsy colonies, a welter of happy confusion. From cookstoves comes a hunger-teasing aroma of browning sausages; coffee bubbles on the second burner. Dishwashing, a communal affair, engenders endless chaffing and laughter.

Flaxen-haired, sun-crisped youths wrestle with accordions, the instruments panting and wheezing in melodious exhaustion. On grassy fields fat women in purple chemises rush nimbly about, hurling blue rubber rings over the heads of their shouting relatives. Brown arms thrash the water of the lake into diamond showers.

The Koenigsdorf district is one of wistful, nostalgic beauty. Langer See, Mueggel See—scene of the annual yachting races—and Teufels See (Devil's lake) lure hosts of wanderers. On an island stands the Castle of Koenigsdorf, which has played an important role in Prussian history. Here was the trial of the Crown Prince Frederick of Prussia, afterward Frederick the Great, court-martialed by his own father.

Far-Away Names

About two hours' drive east of Berlin, you come across a strange phenomenon of nomenclature. Near Kuestrin, in the Oderbruch, a region of fertile flat lands watered by the Oder river, you stare with incredulous astonishment upon encountering a group of villages which bear the names "Maryland," "Saratoga," "Hampshire," "Pennsylvania," and "Jamaica." Even more exotic were "Malta," "Sumatra," and "Ceylon."

The houses are of typical North German architecture, with little emphasis on the picturesque. But the roofs of these nondescript buildings harbor the descendants of a group of would-be pioneers who longed to gaze over far horizons.

The story of how the villages acquired their names is interesting. It seems that in the days when Frederick the Great was forming the villages of the Spree-Havel district into the semblance of a city, there rose up a group of restless souls who wanted to transfer their destinies to America and other such outlandish spots.

Frederick, opposed to the colonizing idea, said a firm and peremptory "No!" He offered them instead lush lands lying along the banks of the nearby Oder—and, as a sop to their thwarted wanderlust, suggested they name their new settlements after faraway places. With commendable docility they settled

PETER HEALS A LAME MAN

LESSON TEXT—Acts 3:1-10; 4:8-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I to thee.—Acts 3:6.

Is Christianity on trial? Answers would differ, depending on varying points of view. Assuredly Christ is not on trial. He is the Son of God and the only Saviour of men, and we are "on trial" as to our attitude toward Him. It is also certain that the true Christian faith is not on trial. Even the liberal and so-called modernistic leaders confess that it is the only faith that has proved itself in the crucible of daily experience.

There is a sense, however, in which Christianity as a whole is on trial. The Church which professes to represent Christ on earth has failed most miserably at so many points that the world is looking at it with the same cold suspicion with which the Church was viewed in the time of Peter. The question which one can feel on every hand even though it is not asked in words, is, "What have you that will meet the unprecedented need of the individual—the social order—the whole of humanity?" There is a sufficient and a satisfying answer, but it is not found so much in the temporal realm as in the spiritual. We have something to offer that is better than silver or gold—the salvation which is found in none other than Jesus Christ, our Lord.

I. Better Than Silver and Gold (3:1-8).

The lame man had long since abandoned hope of anything more than the coins that he could beg as he sat at the temple gate. He is typical of our hardened and cynical age which is interested only in what it can get in cash, and in what that money will buy. Even Christian people seem to have forgotten that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (Luke 12:15).

God has for us things far better than silver and gold—deliverance from the power and penalty of sin, glad liberation from the limitations of spirit which hold us down and make us content with the paltry alms of men. Where are these things to be found? In Christ. How are they ministered? Through His faithful servants. Peter and John were the kind of men who, though busy, had time to pray (v. 1). If you know men or women like that, cultivate their friendship, look intently to them in faith (vv. 4, 5), receive their help (v. 7), and above all, believe in their Christ (v. 6), and you will receive that which is better than silver and gold.

God healed this man's body, but what is more important, He healed his spirit (v. 8). We need that kind of healing for the spiritual cripples of our day. The weak-kneed, lame-ankled, and spirit-darkened individuals in our churches and communities need the touch of God. Perhaps you may be used to bring them His message of deliverance and power.

II. Wonder and Amazement (3:9, 10).

It has been suggested that one of the weak points in the ministry of the modern church is the lack of such miraculous deliverances from sin as those which caused the unbelievers of a generation or two ago to look with wonder on the ministry of the Word. After all there is no testimony just like that of a redeemed and transformed life. Men may argue with our philosophy, question our theology, but a redeemed life is a walking testimony in a community that no scoffers can refute.

There are two reactions recorded in the context of our lesson which reveal the possible attitudes of men toward such experiences. Some were amazed and believed in Christ (4:4). Others hated the cause of Christ (4:16, 17) and they cast the preachers into prison (4:1-3). Did this discourage them? No, indeed. They knew that they owed allegiance to God rather than man (4:19, 20), and consequently used their very trial as an opportunity to proclaim

III. The Pre-eminent Saviour (4:8-12).

Note here again that the speaker was a Spirit-filled man. That is the absolute prerequisite to effective proclamation of the truth. Observe also the care with which Peter makes known that he and John are to have no personal credit or glory. They "have something there" that might well be applied to present-day religious activity when many men must either have all the glory, or go off and start a new work where they can have it.

Let us make much of the clear teaching concerning the person and work of Christ which is found in these verses, particularly stressing His place of absolute pre-eminence as the one and only, and, at the same time, the all-sufficient Saviour of mankind. Let us not forget that "there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved" (v. 12).

C. Houston Goudiss Offers Timely Advice on Keeping Children Well in Winter; Warns of Several Dangers

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ONE of the ways by which her community judges a woman's success as a mother is by the health and well-being of her children. If they are energetic, rosy-cheeked normal boys and girls who have a high resistance to infections, such as the common cold, and if they display the good dispositions that we usually associate with buoyant health, then the verdict of friends and neighbors is usually that of a job well done.

To help her children maintain top health and vitality, a mother must constantly be alert to the various factors that help produce this ideal estate. And at the same time, she must likewise be on guard against the common conditions that may contribute to lowered resistance, especially fatigue and improper diet.

Winter Hazards

It has been said that in winter the body is on trial—and this is as true of children as of adults.

Extremes of temperature require adjustments on the part of the body, and in most parts of the country, children are called upon constantly to switch their environment from a house which is all too frequently overheated to an outdoor temperature that may be below freezing.

While cool, outdoor air is stimulating to children in normal health, some children withstand it much less successfully. This is particularly true of those who are improperly nourished; who are over-fatigued or suffer from poor circulation.

When it is very cold outdoors, it is wise to have children come in from their play periodically to warm up. And if a child appears to suffer from the cold unduly, it is wise to have a physician check up on his health.

Guard Against Frostbite

Over-exposure must be avoided, particularly in cold, damp weather. For under these conditions, doctors warn, there is always a danger of frostbite. They say that whenever the temperature falls below 8 degrees Fahrenheit, children should not be permitted to play outdoors. If they do, the cold may act upon the tissues so that part of the body is deprived of its blood supply. This is most likely to occur in the fingers, toes, nose or ears which thereupon become frozen. The combination of wind and low temperature is especially dangerous and frostbite frequently occurs at temperatures up to 14 degrees Fahrenheit when there is a strong wind.

Mothers should be on guard against frostbite when the temperature is below 24 degrees Fahrenheit, however, and at all times during the winter, see that children are warmly clad. This need not mean that they are so bundled up as to preclude the possibility of active play. Suitable clothing consists of garments which provide warmth and protection against dampness, without constriction at any point.

Two layers of wool, such as that provided by a woolen sweater and playsuit are considered preferable to one too-bulky garment. Feet and hands should, of course, be well protected.

Don't Overheat the House

Only a little less serious are the consequences of dry, overheated indoor air. It is unfortunate that so many people keep their rooms entirely too warm in winter. This not only widens the gap between indoor and outdoor temperatures, but may be extremely irritating to the delicate membranes of the nose and throat. Most authorities consider an indoor temperature of about 68 degrees Fahrenheit satisfactory.

Is Your Child Lazy?

We often hear mothers complain that their children are lazy in cold weather . . . and they seem to have less pep and energy than in other seasons. If by that they mean that their children are less active, it may be that this can be attributed in part to the bleak, shorter days that do not always invite outdoor play. But sometimes a child displays such a reduction in his activities as to appear indolent. Then the mother must seek the physical or emotional factors that may be responsible. For true laziness suggests a body that is not functioning normally.

Quite possibly the child's diet is not meeting his bodily requirements. An undernourished child usually tires easily and is disinclined to exert himself. The food may be adequate as to quantity, but not as to quality. For example, a diet that is too highly concentrated, contains too little bulk or cellulose, may cause a tendency to faulty elimination. This, in turn, is frequently responsible for lassitude. The remedy is often a simple dietary change—the addition of a salad to the daily diet; or possibly the use of stewed dried fruits in addition to a fresh fruit or fruit juice daily. Of course, the child should also have two servings of vegetables besides potatoes, one of which should be of the green leafy variety. Also a quart of milk daily; breads and cereals, at least half of which may preferably be the whole grain variety; an egg daily or at least three or four weekly; one serving of meat, fish or chicken, and another serving of a protein food, such as cheese. Some form of vitamin D should be included in the diet of young children, especially during the winter months.

It is also most important that children follow a daily routine that includes plenty of time for sleep. And for younger children a daytime nap is usually advised.

Children Need Healthy Mothers

Mothers must give attention to the children's health. But let them give some consideration to their own. The tired, nervous mother is very apt to transfer some of her own fatigue and nervousness to her child. So in arranging your child's rest periods, and diet, in looking after proper habits of elimination, make sure that Mother, too . . . and better still every member of the family . . . follows this same sound health program.

Baking Apples.—Apples should be slit with a sharp knife in three or four places before baking, so that the skins do not wrinkle up while in the oven.

When Washing Glass.—A little starch added to the water used for washing windows, mirrors and glassware not only helps remove dirt but gives a lasting polish.

To Reseal Envelopes.—If you have forgotten the inclosure in a letter try to open the envelope carefully by rolling a pencil under the envelope flap towards the edge. Add the inclosure and re-seal by painting the flap with liquid nail polish and pressing the flap down tightly.

To Blanch Nuts.—To remove thin brown skin covering from nut meats, cover the meats with boiling water and let them stand five minutes in a covered dish. Drain and then quickly rub off the skins with the fingers. A small sharp knife may be needed on Brazil nuts.

Damp Brushes and Cloths.—Cleaning brushes and cloths should never be put away until they are entirely dried out. They are most attractive to roaches in their dampened state and almost always become rank and unpleasant, and of no further use in the cleaning line.

Fillings for Baked Apples.—Varied fillings for baked apples might be: brown sugar, jelly, jam, maple sugar, raisins, nuts, figs, prunes, dates, coconut, mince meat or sausage.

For Baby's Safety.—Never try to carry baby in one arm and some other hard-to-manage article in the other when going down stairs.

A Darning Hint.—When darning silk stockings in a place where the mending does not show, use a fine needle and one strand of silk for darning one way, making sure that every little stitch is caught to prevent laddering. For the other way use two-ply skein wool.

For the Seamstress.—Cut georgette crepe and chiffon through two or three thicknesses of newspaper and the material will not stick to the scissors and prove difficult.

RAW THROAT

If Your Sore, Scratchy Throat Comes from a Cold—You Can Often Get Fast Relief this Way

1. To ease pain and reduce fever take 2 Bayer Tablets—let in ½ glass of water . . . gargle.

2. If throat is raw from cold, crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Tablets in ½ glass of water . . . gargle.

Just Make Sure You Use Genuine BAYER Aspirin

Try it. Then—see your doctor. He probably will tell you to continue with Bayer Aspirin because it acts fast to relieve discomforts of a cold. And reduce fever.

This simple way, backed by scientific authority, has largely supplanted the use of strong medicines in easing cold symptoms. Perhaps the easiest way yet discovered. But get genuine BAYER Aspirin.

Visitors Saturday at the Edward Marshall home were Mrs. John Cutler, Mrs. Frank Storm, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilmington & grandson, Mrs. Harrison Haley of Kempton and Mr. Donald Haley of Cullom.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Faar received word of the death of Mr. Henry Petersen of Chicago. He was the father of Mrs. Raymond Faar. He died very suddenly while riding on a street car on his way to work.

Mr. Edwin and Mr. Angus McKennon of Calgary, Alberta, Canada, visited one day last week at the home of Mrs. C. F. Haley and Miss Agnes Haley.

Miss Gladys Nelson accompanied Mrs. Francis Nelson home to Detroit, Mich., where she will spend several days.

Next Saturday evening, the Marley Sunday Evening club will give a Valentine party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lauffer. Ladies are asked to bring a Valentine.

MOKENA

The annual Father and Son banquet by the Brotherhood of the St. John Evangelical in the church parlors Thursday evening was well attended and in addition to the excellent meal a very interesting program was presented with Rev. Glen Gumm of Norwood Park, Ill., the speaker of the evening. Musical numbers and songs were also rendered, one of the features being a trio composed of Rev. S. Recht, Rev. E. Wahl and Rev. Theo. Haefele.

The Women's Union members also appeared in a short play "Madam Bixby's Beauty Parlor."

Mrs. Florence Steele who has been on a trip to California is expected home this week.

IN MEMORIAM

HURLEY, MRS. CARRIE—In loving memory of our beloved daughter and sister who passed away six years ago, February 4, 1933:

A kind daughter, beloved by all,
Has answered the summons of Heaven's call;

A beautiful life has passed away,
Passed on the land of perfect day.

What a comforting thought of those
Knowing her best,
To feel assured of her perfect rest,
When the Heavenly Father calls
We must obey,

Be it evening or morning or the Height of day,
But we all may rejoice as He knoweth best

And gives His children the home of the Blest,
So the trials of life for her are Over

As she passes on to the Heavenly Shore.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN CAPPEL,
AND WALTER CAPPEL.

FRANKFORT-NEW LENOX 4-H

CLUB NEWS

Mary Catherine Marti, reporter

The meeting of the Frankfort New Lenox 4-H Club was held in the Francis School Tuesday night, February 7.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Chester Ebert, by the saying of the 4-H pledge.

Two members were welcomed to the Club: Misses Hazel and Lucille Janssen of Mokena.

Talks will be given at the next meeting by Janette Eisenbandt, Nick Heiman, Wm. Abbe and Harry Yunker, on March 7, when the meeting will again be held in Francis school.

The social hour after meetings are always enjoyed by all. It is not too late to enroll for club work for this year, and new members are always welcome.

Will County F
Men Stamping
Out Rural Crime

A certain gang would appear at an auction sale, bid on various articles and while the auctioneer and clerk were busy they would load up and pull off the farm yard without paying for what they had bid for. The F-Men stopped this racket by posting on the roads around the farm and whenever a stranger appeared with a load of merchandise or stock he would have to show that it was paid for before it could leave the premises. This finally stopped the racket.

Within the last year or so crime has been cut down to almost a standstill in Crete township. Last week there was one sport of criminal nature when a young girl was attacked on a footpath while coming home from choir practice in the village of Crete. When the criminal seized the girl she began screaming, he became frightened and ran away. The girl was unable to give a coherent description of the man but had been able to do so and had been caught the F-Men declare, there would have been a lynching probably. Since the farmers have taken a determined stand in that part of Will county against crime they have succeeded in checking it very efficiently. Captain Haines pointed out that all F-Men should be courageous in facing criminals and if he carried a gun should be unafraid to use it.

It was also pointed out that in Will county as a whole rural crime has been cut down fully 80 to 90 per cent since the various townships have organized FG-Men associations. Every farmer should belong to this association. The membership fee is $1 a year, which should not stand in the way of joining this worthwhile organization which is for the protection of the life and property of the rural sections. In addition to the two officers of the Crete F-Men named were Edw. Schrage, program chairman of the Crete F-Men, Fred Spangler, captain of the Edwood F-Men and Howard Klett captain of the Will County F-Men. The latter officers gave a very interesting account of how crime has been stamped out in the Elwood territory through the efforts of the organization. Deputies Gilbert Knater and Kelly of the Will county sheriff's office were also present and Deputy Kelly gave the as-

Deputy Knater recently broke up a racket gang operating among the farmers in the Wilmington territory. Three of the racketeers posed as cattle buyers and issued worthless checks. Deputy Knater succeeded in locking up the trio and they were convicted and sentenced.

TINLEY PARK

Mr. and Mrs. John Swisher received a message Saturday telling of the death of the former's father, Frank Swisher at Palisades, Colo. Mr. and Mrs. Swisher left by auto Sunday night for the west. Mrs. Swisher is stopping off in Kansas to visit with relatives.

A number of cases of scarlet fever, scarletina and chicken pox have broken out and the homes where these cases exist have been quarantined. The Chas. Sippel home which has been under quarantine was released from the ban Tuesday.

Andrew and Henry Schellhase of Nebraska were called here the past week by the death of Mrs. Wm. Schellhase.

The prize winners at the pinochle tournament in the Saenger hall Tuesday night were: First, Mr. Kelly, second, Walter Mancke; third, C. A. Steinhagen. These weekly tournaments are proving very popular and are well attended.

The St. George Church will sponsor a dance at the Saenger hall on the evening of February 13th.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. John Schuldt, Jr., who passed away on a year ago, February 6, 1938:

Long days, long nights
You bore your pain
Waiting for cure of all, in vain.
God saw that you were suffering,
And the hills were hard to climb,
So he closed your weary eyes and whispered peace divine.
Husband and Children.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy in our recent bereavement. The flowers, and the unnumbered kind deeds have been more than appreciated by us. They have been as a gift of God, buoying us through the shock of our loss.

MR. WM. SCHELLHASE AND CHILDREN.

Last Friday evening the Tinley Park Methodist Young People's society had a sleighing party. By the light of the moon, jingling of bells, and jolly bunch all had a happy go lucky time. The sleigh ride wound up at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Andres where delicious chicken sandwiches, pumpkin pie and hot chocolate were served.

Quite a bit of interest and curiosity is aroused by the announcement of a Colonial Valentine Tea, to be given in the Tinley Park Methodist church February 14.

We feel sure that one of the only ways of satisfying the curiosity is to go and see. But, to go, and see will mean more than mere satisfaction of curiosity. You will also have the benefit of good, wholesome fellowship, of enjoyable entertainment and dainty refreshments.

Why not plan your housework and your chores so that your afternoon of February 14 is free, and come to the Methodist church and enjoy the Colonial Valentine Tea?

P. T. A. Notes

On Friday, February 3, the P. T. A. honored the founders of the National Parent Teacher Organization, as well as our local past presidents, of whom there were nine, several having served two year terms. Those who were present were presented with a beautiful yellow rose tied with blue ribbon. Two golden candles were lighted in memory of two past presidents who have passed on.

The pupils of Mrs. Deon's room gave a short sketch entitled "Bookland," the dream of a little girl who had mistreated her books.

The teachers reported on the books they had purchased with the money presented them by the P. T. A.

On February 10, the teachers will attend the Teachers Institute to be held in the Thornton Fractional High School in Calumet City.

Mr. Clinebell invited us to visit his room and see the two baby alligators sent to his room from Florida. The pupils are very much enthused over their new pets, some of the boys even breaking ice in the creek to catch small fish to feed them.

The nominating committee elected to choose new officers for next term, are Mrs. E. Wallin, Mrs. G. Rauch, and Mrs. R. Hesbot.

Once again we had the pleasure of having Mrs. Clark L. Reed, 4th vice-president of the Illinois Congress, speak to us, her subject being, "Character Development."

The monthly room award was given to Mrs. Dean's room.

At the close of the meeting, ice cream, fancy cup cakes and salted nuts were served.

ERNA WALLIN, pub. ch'm'n.

This Week In Washington

By Ralph E. Church
Representative, 10th Congressional District

It is indeed unfortunate that the United States allowed itself to be misled into becoming the world's dumping ground for silver. We cannot over-emphasize the very dangerous course we have been pursuing under the Silver Purchase Act. The enactment of this particular law is considered by most economists as one of the most serious and costly mistakes the Administration has made. It is problematical whether Congress will repeal or revise the Act at this Session; but to a noticeable extent sentiment against the Silver Purchase Act is increasing.

The Silver Purchase Act became a law in June of 1934. It directed the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase silver at a reasonable price up to the statutory value of $1.29 an ounce until the Treasury held silver equal to 25 per cent of the monetary value of its gold and silver holdings. This silver purchasing program was inaugurated at the specific request of the President, who advocated the establishment of international bimetalism.

The question of a single or double standard for the monetary system of the United States has long been a political issue. It is an old historic battle. But, for some reason, our historic experiences with silver legislation do not seem to have taught us any lessons.

When the United States went on the gold standard in 1875 and abolished the silver dollar from the coinage system, the mining interests of the west and the inflationary interests called it the "Crime of '73". Immediately agitation began for a remonetization of silver. Free and unlimited coinage was not restored, but the agitation did result in two compromise measures which should be lessons of experience for the American people.

In 1878, over the veto of President Hayes, Congress blundered into the Bland-Allison Act for the purchase of silver by the Secretary of the Treasury. By 1884 the Secretary was in trouble because of that silver program, and there developed what may be said to be silver business depression. It was only by certain monetary manipulations that a panic was averted. Business revived, but the general public never understood exactly what took place.

In 1890 a still greater folly was committed when the Sherman Silver Purchase Act was passed. Three years later a panic resulted; and, if I recall correctly, President Cleveland called Congress into special session and the silver measure was promptly repealed. The public paid a very dear price for that mistake. The unfortunate part of the history of silver is that it is called upon to play a prominent role only in times of acute depression. Unemployment and debt burdens offer an excuse for the silverites of the west to agitate for the remonetization of silver. It is, they say, the one certain cure of our depression difficulties. But own experiences with silver legislation should be ample proof that it is anything but a cure of economic ills.

Somehow public attention should be called for the far-reaching implications of the Silver Purchase Act. It has dangerous potentialities and has cost the taxpayers about one billion dollars.

VALENTINE GREETINGS

All you need to send this unique valentine is a heavy application of lip rouge and a telephonic image transmitter. At New York, Mary gets lonesome for her boy friend in Chicago so she presses her lips to a telegraph blank, signs it "with love from Mary" and—

Hands it to a messenger girl who roller skates (it saves time) to the transmitting machine, hands it to the operator who—

Puts it on a spool and transmits to Chicago via an "electric eye" scanning device. A few minutes later, the boy friend receives his unusual telegram, presses his lips to it and guess what he gets. A valentine kiss!

News From Springfield

By Bernice T. Van der Vries
Representative, Seventh Senatorial District General Assembly of Illinois

The work of the General Assembly last week was crippled by the snow storm, particularly in the House where there was no business important enough to justify the attendance of many members. The members of the Senate were urgently needed on Monday night to vote on the Bidwell Bills which opened the approaching Primary election in Chicago to all voters and on the Ward Bills which amended the Permanent Registration Act. Since these measures had to be passed and signed by the Acting Governor to bring into Springfield the thirty-four senators whose votes were required in favor of the bills. The experiences of some who arrived in freight trains and on snow plows were most entertaining.

The House met for an hour and a half on Tuesday morning, a few committees had hearings on emergency bills and all of Chicago area members caught an early afternoon train for home feeling that they might as well have remained at home.

Committee Assignments

Since there is no legislative news to report, this seems the appropriate time to report the committee assignments of the Senator and the three Representatives in the Seventh District as follows:

Senator Bidwell

Corporations and Municipalities, Education, Fees and Salaries, Industrial Affairs, License and Miscellaneous, Public Health, Public Welfare, Reapportionment, Roads and Transportation and Insurance.

Representative McGrath

Contingent Expenses, Efficiency and Economy, Liquor Regulation, Municipalities, Roads and Bridges and Waterways.

Representative Sprague

Contingent Expenses, Education, Judiciary, Municipalities, Parks, Public Health, Reapportionment and Revenue.

Representative Van der Vries

Appropriations, Banks and Building and Loan Associations, Charities and Corrections, Civil Service, Education, Efficiency and Economy, Municipalities, Reapportionment and Enrolling, Transcribing and Typing of Bills.

Barring snow storms and other unforeseen obstructions to work there will probably be more business transacted next week as the presiding officers of the two houses are eager to speed up the session with a view to earlier adjournment.

FRANKFORT

Mrs. Herbert Kohlhausen

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Oetter of Andres entertained at a family party in honor of their daughter, Donna Mae's eighth birthday. Eighteen guests were present and a lovely supper was served.

Mr. William Kampe and daughter, Wilma, Virginia Warning and Marjorie Nieland returned on Sunday, February 5, from a trip to Florida. They reported a very interesting vacation.

Mr. Fred Harnack, Jr., underwent an operation for appendicitis on Monday, February 6, in Silver Cross hospital.

Miss Sylvia Pfaff is convalescing from an operation for appendicitis which she underwent on Wednesday, February 1, in Silver Cross hospital.

Death claimed Mrs. Sarah Long, aged 73, on Tuesday, January 31, in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carl Ehlers. She had made her home there for some time. She is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Howard, of Frankfort. Mrs. Long's body was taken by Hirsch to Kankakee on Thursday. From there it was shipped by train to Cincinnati, O., for burial. She has a son residing there. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ehlers accompanied the body.

Mrs. Charles Frulich is still very ill in her home.

Mrs. Herbert Kohlhausen entertained the Amite Sewing Club in her home on Tuesday, February 7th.

Mrs. Fred Kohlhausen had the misfortune of falling on a slippery walk on Thursday, February 2. She hurt her knee and was unable to walk for a few days but is convalescing favorably.

The Home Improvement Club will meet on Thursday, February 16, in the home of Mrs. Walter Pfaff.

Corinne Krusemark, Katherine Priami and Jeanette Heausner were honored on Sunday night, February 5, by being chosen to play in the J. T. H. S. orchestra in a program presented by the St. Joseph Catholic Church in the High School Auditorium.

Many housewives of our town were kept busy this week by attending the annual cooking school in Joliet in the Rialto Theater every morning.

Br'er Rabbit coming to an abrupt halt in order to avoid the Big Bad Wolf who is lurking between two parked automobiles illustrates the safety message on this month's safety poster sent to 39,000 class rooms in Illinois and Indiana by the Chicago Motor club accident prevention bureau.

"Keep from between parked cars" in white letters against a red background is the headline on the poster for February, one of a series distributed by the motor club which is featuring the use of nursery rhyme characters to point out the moral of the safety lesson.

This month's question which is always placed at the bottom of the poster and is generally used by teachers as a topic for discussion asks, "How Can You Avoid Danger as Br'er Rabbit Avoids the Fox?" The question presupposes the answer that the children, like Br'er Rabbit, should avoid the danger of running between parked cars.

George Barton, head of the motor club safety dept., says, "School authorities favor the regular use of the safety posters because it makes the work of the school safety patrol more effective by teaching smaller children good safety habits."

Second of a Series of Five Weekly Articles on "WHAT UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION MEANS TO ILLINOIS WORKERS"

For more than a year, the State of Illinois has been collecting contributions from approximately 30,000 employers to build up a State Unemployment Trust Fund.

Money from the fund can be used only to pay benefits to those persons who are ordinarily employed but who are out of work through no fault of their own.

Almost 2,000,000 persons in Illinois are protected by this job insurance and should they be unemployed after July 1, 1939, these protected workers would be entitled to draw benefits from the State Unemployment Compensation Trust Fund.

Before the State could pay anything, naturally it had to build up a fund from which to draw benefits. Authorities figured that it would take two years to build up a sufficiently large fund to meet the problem of unemployment in this State.

The Illinois General Assembly approved the State Job Insurance law in June, 1937. The law known as the Illinois Unemployment Compensation Act required employers of eight or more persons in most industries to pay contributions into the job insurance fund starting with July, 1937.

The rate of contribution that Illinois employers are required to pay now is 2.7 per cent of their payrolls. This money goes into a trust fund and can be used for no other purpose than payment of benefits to persons who are unemployed and who worked in insured employment.

Today the Unemployment Compensation Trust Fund amounts to about $120,000,000. By July, when the unemployed of the State start collecting benefits, it will be more than $150,000,000.

To be eligible to draw benefits from this fund a worker must have worked since July 1, 1938, for an employer who had made contributions to the job insurance fund.

For the most part protected workers are those who have earned wages in factories, shops, mills, mines, stores, offices and other places of business employing eight or more persons for at least one day in 20 separate calendar weeks in 1937 or 1938.

Workers may find out whether they are protected under the Act by looking for an official notice of compliance with the Unemployment Compensation Act which every contributing employer is required to post in a conspicuous place. If a person has worked for any employer who had such a notice posted, he will have earned "wage credits" under the job insurance plan and will be entitled to benefits when out of a job if he meets other eligibility requirements.

From this limitation, it is apparent that not all workers of the State are covered. In general, persons working for an employing unit that ordinarily hires less than eight persons are not protected by job insurance.

Certain other classes of workers likewise are not protected by Unemployment Compensation. The Act does not cover employment on farms or in domestic service in private homes or employment by the city, county, State or Federal Government. Nor does it cover employment when a child is working for his parents, a parent is working for a son or daughter or when a husband or wife is working for the other. Protection of the job insurance law does not apply to employment by non-profit religious, charitable, educational or humane societies or institutions. Other workers excluded from benefits of the Act are those working on railroads, those engaged in maritime work on navigable waters and minors attending school.

Because the Act limits benefits to persons who are "involuntarily" unemployed, workers who are out of a job because of being directly involved in a labor dispute also are excluded though they may have worked in covered employment.

HOMER

(Received too late for last week)

OBITUARY

Mrs. Angeline Sonntag, aged 76 years, passed away at her home in Lockport, January 22, 1939, after a lingering illness.

Mrs. Sonntag was the former Angeline Reiter and was for many years a resident of Homer township. Mr. Sonntag preceded her in death several years ago.

She leaves to mourn her loss three daughters: Edna, Mrs. Arthur Lauffer; Irene, Mrs. Robert Boland, and Mrs. Iva Martin; 2 sons, Julius and Howard; two grandsons; four brothers, Peter, Ed, John and Lloyd Reiter, five sisters, Mrs. Susan Gotts, Mrs. Mary Eggers, Mrs. Elizabeth Ericson, Mrs. John Austin (Helen) and Mrs. Jerry Parker (Florence).

The body was taken to the Sonntag funeral home in Joliet and to St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Lockport, from where services were held at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday. Burial was in Brooks cemetery.

The Homer Community club had its monthly party on Friday night at the town hall with a goodly number present. Cards and dancing were features of the evening. The committee appointed to have charge of the February activities is Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kolar and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Konow.

The Wayside Workers Circle of Kings Daughters met in the home of Miss Myra Reed on Thursday afternoon.

The cast for the play "Little Miss Tatters" met for rehearsal in the home of Miss Lois Jungles.

Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Cagwin and sons, Willard and Ralph, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kopelman and family were entertained at dinner Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rodgers.

A group of young people from the Homer church attended the Pilgrim Fellowship Conference at Lisle.

Wednesday night. After the business meeting, the men enjoyed a "steak fry" with Walter Jungles and Matt Weber, as the committee in charge.

The skating party, which was to have been held Saturday night at Highland park, was postponed so the young people went to the home of Miss Lois Jungles and sent the evening playing games. Refreshments were later served by the committee in charge.

The ladies Missionary Society met for an all day meeting in the church parlors Thursday. A pot-luck dinner was served at noon. During the business session, Mrs. Ira Anderson, president of the Society, appointed the following committees: Miss Myra Rerd, devotionals; Mrs. Charles Jensen, projects; Mrs. Wray White, box; Mrs. George Ott, adventures in reading; Mrs. John White, hospitality; Mrs. Helen Dowley, social action; Mrs. Ben Ingersol, co-operation and Mrs. Stuart Vanderbilt, good cheer and sympathy. Hostess committees were then named for the ensuing year.

PLANT A GARDEN IN YOUR WINDOW

With gray skies the order of the February days, thus making it necessary to turn on the lights in the very early afternoon and frequently to burn them most of the day, it takes a bit more than ordinary ingenuity and imagination to give the living room a gay and cheerful atmosphere.

One of the surest ways to achieve an atmosphere that makes your friends exclaim "how charming" when they enter your living room is to make use of growing plants and the many bright bulb plants that bloom so prolifically at this time of the year. In fact, you can easily plant in indoor garden by making use of plate glass shelves that can be installed in your windows with a minimum of effort.

This is an ideal way to keep potted plants indoors for they not only get the necessary light, but the feeling of a garden can be more realistically obtained if the plants are concentrated in groups. Also, framed by window drapes they make a charming effect that can easily become the focal point of interest in your room.

Many stores now carry hanging shelves of plate glass that are designed to hold window gardens. However, if you cannot find them in your department or hardware store the glass dealer undoubtedly can make them up for you.

Among plants which will grow well indoors in pots and which are to be found in almost any florist shop are cyclamen, Spanish pepper, ivy, all of the ferns, begonia, amaryllis, paper narcissus, gardenia, the salmon colored patience (an old favorite of grandmother's day) and the African violet.

ORLAND PARK

The committee which Mayor Wm. Kollman recently appointed to investigate the matter of securing the WPA grant for the village hall are expected to make a report by March 15. The village board will hold their semi-monthly meeting next Monday evening.

A group of Orland parents of students attending the Blue Island High school attended a parents council meeting Monday evening at the Blue Island high school.

The bible class of the Orland Park M. E. Church met in Creer's hall at their monthly meeting Wednesday evening.

The members of the Walther League of the Christ Lutheran church are actively engaged in preparation for the presentation of the three act comedy, "Heart Exchange" which they will present February 17 and 18 in the Orland Park school auditorium. An interesting and worthwhile program is in the making and the public is cordially invited to attend this affair and help the young people to make a success of their undertaking.

Sunday dinner guests in the Tom Wheeler home were: Mr. and Mrs. William Collins, Mrs. Catherine Cox, Mrs. Mary Weiland, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith and Albert Wheeler.

BASKETBALL

Orland Park High school defeated Mokena high in a hard fought game last Friday night at Mokena gym, by a score of 19-17. This is the second time Orland has beat the Mokena boys, but the score has been very close each time. Bill McAleer led in the scoring with four baskets and one free throw; Bud Cox was next with two baskets and a free throw. Bell Davidson and Don Brennan got one basket apiece.

A Bit of Embroidery For Small Son's Suit

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: Those pages of embroidery stitches in your Book 2 have interested me greatly. I can never remember from time to time how to do even feather stitching. It is ingenious the way you show how to make each kind of stitch, and I turn to your book often. I have a small son now four and a half years old, and have always enjoyed making his clothes and trimming them with little touches of embroidery. Do you think he is too old for this? B. H."

You still have a year or so if you keep the suits smart and boyish. I am sketching an embroidered trimming idea for you here. The thread should match the color of the trousers. Mark an outline for the embroidery with pencil as at A. Work over this with tiny chain stitches as at B; then make larger chain or loop stitches as at C and D.

Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroideries, contains 48 pages of step-by-step directions which have helped thousands of women. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Order by number, enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both, a crazy-quilt leaflet with 36 authentic patchwork stitches will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

SAFETY TALKS

Rural Traffic Accidents Increase

Traffic accidents in the rural districts are mounting by leaps and bounds. Since 1924, the National Safety council says, motor vehicle fatalities have increased 172 per cent. In cities over 10,000 population they went up but 30 per cent.

Of course, the council points out, a large part of this increase may be the result of much-increased rural travel. But most traffic authorities believe, however, that the more favorable city record can be traced to the more effective traffic control measures in municipalities.

In 1937, the loss of life to traffic accidents in rural districts and cities under 10,000 population was 27,400. In cities over 10,000, there were 12,100 killed.

While collisions with pedestrians constituted the major fatal accident problem in cities, rural districts had their greatest difficulty with collisions between two or more motor vehicles.

Making Time Live

The man who is always killing time is really killing his own chances in life; while the man who is destined to success is the man who makes time live by making it useful.—Arthur Brisbane.

MOUNTAIN MAN

© H. C. Wire—WNU Service

SYNOPSIS

Jim Cotter, forest ranger, had been mysteriously killed in the pursuit of his duties. Gordon Breck, his best friend, takes over Cotter's job, hoping to avenge his murder. "Dad" Cook, forest superintendent, warns Breck that the Tillson brothers, mountain moonshiners, are apt to give him trouble. Before leaving for his mountain station, Breck buys an outfit and decides to attend the public dance run by the Tillsons in Lone Tree. At the dance Breck dances with Louise Temple, pretty "cowgirl" for whom he takes a liking. Unknown to Breck, she is being courted by Art Tillson, youngest of the three Tillson brothers. Angered by Breck's attentions to the girl, he picks a fight which ends indecisively when someone sets fire to the hall. Breck and his chief set out for the mountain station.

For an hour Cook and Breck rode up a long gradual slope that shelved out from the wall of the Sierras. The town of Lone Tree dropped behind them and then was lost in the desert sink.

Toward noon they had climbed the desert shelf and were near the road's end, where Breck saw some sort of camp along a willow creek. A corral enclosed one end of a box canyon further on, and from this rose a cloud of dust. He glimpsed a herd of animals racing before a lone horseman, then caught a deep voice, slow and good-natured in spite of the curses it uttered.

"That's Sierra Slim," Cook explained, "one of my forest guards. Must have seen us coming and has wrangled up the pack train. You'll meet a real moss-back mountaineer in Sierra. He's going to be your partner until you're well broke in."

They stopped their truck under the trees, climbed out, and a moment later Breck watched a lank, loose-jointed figure amble down from the corrals. He wore a black Stetson of the cow country, limpbripped, with its high crown knocked into a peak. The rest of his costume was equally haphazard; flannel shirt with bright red and black checks, gray jeans, shoes with golf soles.

"Slim," said Cook, "this is Breck. He's going up with us to take over Rock House station."

"Glad to know you," he declared perfunctorily. "Goin' to take Cotter's place, eh? Well, for me now, I can't see myself doin' it. Understand, I ain't exactly sayin' I wouldn't. And again, that don't mean I would!"

Glancing beyond Sierra Slim, Breck caught a twinkle in Dad Cook's eyes. A little later when Sierra had wandered off, saying he would rustle some grub, Cook laughed. "Slim's meaning is hard to get at sometimes, but don't let that bother you. He isn't half as confused as he makes out."

After noon chuck they all turned to the job of packing for an early start tomorrow. Everything had to be stowed in the leather kyaks, that, two for each mule, must be nicely balanced in weight. Breck had once gone through the experience of having a load kicked to pieces when it turned under his mule's belly, so calculated his outfit carefully now.

"Of course," Cook said, grinning as he stood up from a pile of telephone insulators, "you can hang a rock on one side or the other to even it up. I've seen that done!"

Breck left his work for a time and surveyed the equipment at Cook's feet. "Seems to me," he observed, "that most of your load has to do with telephones."

"It has. That will be your first job—two hundred miles of line and most of it torn down by fallen trees or snowed under. Like that every spring. You wait, son! Two weeks of climbing those giant fir will tell what you're made of."

Just before evening Sierra Slim dragged a dozen pack saddles from under a tarpaulin, inspected them, then uncovered more riding gear.

By sundown they had twenty-four kyaks filled and standing two by two under the trees. Pack saddles rested in a row on a log, lead ropes coiled nearby. Each man's riding gear lay close to the spot where he had unrolled his bed. It was the camp of a pack train ready to hit the trail at dawn.

A cool wind from over the mountains forced down the desert heat. Cook built a campfire, and in the hour before turning in all three sat with the red glow upon their faces; their shadows flickering off to mingle with the canyon blackness. The time had come for pipes, and far-off thoughts, and words slowly spoken.

Talk drifted inevitably to the Tillsons. Cook made a remark, Sierra Slim delivered his non-committal speech. But he remained silent himself, thinking of his purpose in coming to these mountains.

"I did imagine my business would be a simple matter," he confessed at last. "Just find out who killed Cotter and then—" He paused, brushing his hand through the firelight. "—wipe him out. But this isn't that kind of war."

"You don't know your man," Cook affirmed, "and until we learn more you had better not do any advertising. So far I've passed Cotter's death as an accident. Shot by deer hunters."

"I know," said Breck, remembering his slip before the grocer in Lone Tree. "I'm wise," he added. "Now I see it this way; I'll have to force an issue with the Tillsons in line with my job, and settle for Cotter when I settle that."

Cook nodded. "You're beginning to open your eyes, son."

"I ain't!" Sierra muttered, rising. "I'm shuttin' 'em tight. And don't you all disturb my beauty sleep!"

CHAPTER V

"Roll out, Ranger!"

Words roaring through a heavy sleep. Smells of bacon and coffee mingled with smoke. Breck opened his eyes. It was still dark.

Rising upon one elbow, he saw Dad Cook holding a pot over the fire. The old man jerked his head sharply. "Up and at it!"

Breck obeyed. This was business. As he started down to the creek he heard a rush of animals in the corral, the sudden squeal of horses, then Sierra Slim's gentle cursing. A wash in water that was only a few miles from snow aroused him thoroughly and brought a wolfish appetite. Cook and Sierra were already eating when he returned to camp. He squatted down beside them. Fried meat, fried potatoes, thick slices of bread, and coffee of the sort that carries authority for the rest of the day. Dawn was in the canyon as they finished.

The time had come for pipes.

"Now boys," said Cook, "let's get along. No telling how much snow we'll have to buck on top and I want to make the station before dark."

He pointed to a line of animals that Sierra had brought to the rack. "Breck, those horses on the end are yours. The gray is Custer; the black's Kit. Better saddle Kit. We'll cinch a load of nails on Cus and let him take a fling at that if he feels ornery. Yonder's a mule—God knows he's a mistake, but you fall heir to him. His name is Goot."

For proof he gave the switch tail a yank that ought to have pulled the thing from its socket.

Breck went on to his horses, saddling first the black, a truly beautiful animal, tall and spare-bodied, legs not too slender for mountain work, and a sensitive, intelligent face. The gray was old and showed a disposition that had been ruined in his first handling. Upon him he lashed the two pouches full of nails and let him have his morning buck.

He loaded Goot more carefully. First the kyaks, hooked on the pack saddle forks and hanging down, one on either side, then his bedding, doubled and laid crosswise, and over all a waterproof tarpaulin.

Morning in the High Sierras! Dew along the stream bottom and the sharp tang of sage. Creaking of leather and jingle of spurs. The muffled pad of shoes, broken by the ring of their soles on rock. The sigh of wind in pines further up. And then the red sun bursting like a prairie fire over distant desert hills.

The trail climbed rapidly. Soon the desert had fallen into a deep sink where flocks of salt on a dead lake reflected the changing colors of sunrise. Up and up! At times the train was like a line of ants clinging to the sheer granite face. Again, siwashing, Breck looked down at the string doubled four times upon itself.

At eleven o'clock they reached the first summit, and through Farewell Gap he gazed back for his last view of that land so far down. When he turned west again a cold breeze blew on his face, fresh from snow fields that glittered in the sun. Now as far as he could see lay a country of pine ridges and barren rock peaks interlaced through meadows of brilliant green. Here was the roof of the High Sierras.

Noon passed; and then one o'clock before Cook halted the train for half an hour's rest. Breck dismounted, stiff in the legs and glad to walk. Sierra Slim boiled a gallon pot of water and threw in a fistful of tea. That, with whatever food each man had cared to put in his saddle bags, was lunch.

It was while they squatted near the fire, warming their hands and eating, that Breck heard a clatter of hoofs somewhere below. He looked down into a narrow canyon that cut the mountains to the south of Farewell Gap. A second trail led up there and presently two horsemen appeared on it. He waited until they crossed a treeless area before shifting his scrutiny from them and back to Cook and Slim. They too were watching.

Another rider came some distance behind the first two, as if a rear guard for them; all three passed up the canyon, unencumbered by pack animals. With them was a gray, wolf-like dog. They were half a mile distant, yet their tall figures and their alert set gave identity. Coming onto a shelf they put their horses in a jog trot and vanished at a point where the two trails joined.

"That," said Sierra Slim, "ain't no ways hard to read!"

"They might be riding in to establish their cow-camp," Cook of-

From the rear of the train Sierra yelled, "Fish!"

Cook chuckled. "New hand catches trout for supper," he explained. "So grab a line first thing, Breck, and get us a mess."

CHAPTER VI

Again that call bursting through the dawn: "Roll out, Ranger!"

Breck threw back the hood of his tarp and looked up. Overhead, pine branches waved against a sky that still held a few stars. At his right Dad Cook was crawling from his own cocoon-like bed, while to the left Sierra Slim had dressed as far as trousers, and now sat morose and silent, staring at the ground.

Breakfast was a wordless meal. But as Sierra finished his third cup of coffee, he shoved back his bench and at once resumed his good nature.

"Well chief," he asked, "where do we head first?"

Cook rose and gathered the dishes into a pan with one sweep of his arm. "You and Breck," he said, "will take the Little Whitney and Kern River line going out. Then come back by Sulphur Canyon. Unless the wire is all down you ought to be here again in a week. I'll go south to Temple Meadow."

He turned gravely to Breck. "If you live through a week of Slim's dutch-oven bread you've got a tin gizzard!"

Gruelling work filled the days that followed, yet for Breck they were strangely satisfying. Work oriented his life. It was like the magnetic pole that holds a compass needle steady.

Work went on. From headquarters station he and Sierra followed a single strand of wire hung from tree trunks, part of two hundred miles that radiated like a spider's web over the mountain range. It knew no trail, but climbed walls and plunged across canyons in its direct course from point to point.

As days passed with long hours of work and hardship mutually shared, Breck felt a bond growing between himself and Sierra. Over the night's campfire, with the mountain silence about them and only their own thoughts to break it, their companionship strengthened into confidences, and their separate natures began to unfold. In these hours men are apt to bare their best and their worst, and show traits that would have remained hidden during years of acquaintance in the cities below.

Talk drifted to Lone Tree, and men, and girls. "Slim," Breck asked, "Why haven't you ever married?"

Sierra screwed his mouth sideways. "Ah shucks! What'd I do with a woman? How could I pack her around these sand hills? Besides, I never seen any in my life that I'd trade a mule for, except one. And she wouldn't want my kind. Fact is, I wouldn't try to make her want me."

He looked up from a close survey of the coals. "Maybe you seen her at the dance. I wasn't there myself. Old man Temple's kid."

The name jolted Breck from quiet musing. "Louise?"

"Yeah. Louy. There's a girl!"

Sierra rolled another smoke. "Most of the cowhands hereabouts is spreadin' their ropes for her," he went on. "The dam' fools! Trying to tie her in some shanty cookin' their greasy grub!"

"I saw her in Lone Tree," Breck admitted. "Doesn't she belong in the cow-country?"

Sierra nodded. "You'd say so, sure you would!"

Breck laughed, recognizing the rebuke.

Humans Have Same Homing Instincts As the Pigeon, an Authority Asserts

Man, who marvels at the manner in which homing pigeons wing their unerring way hundreds of miles to their own lofts, has the same homing instinct as the pigeon and doesn't know it. It lies latent in many of us, and only needs practice to develop, declares Noel Macbeth, of Chelmsford, Essex, says Pearson's London Weekly.

The instinct arises from "terrestrial magnetism," linked up with the water diviner's power of detecting water beneath the ground. According to Macbeth this power is far more common than is generally supposed. Approximately four men out of ten and six women out of ten have it.

Macbeth's theory is that every object not radio-active has a wave-field, and by holding something in one's hand with the corresponding wave-field one can detect that object.

For instance, with a hazel rod, which has a corresponding wave-field to water, one can detect water. An authority under whom Macbeth studied in France, by using a bird's feather as a divining rod, can detect game from a greater distance than can gun-dogs.

The same principle applies to pigeons. They become impregnated with the "magnetic smell" of their loft and, as they circle in the air, they feel the magnetic pull in one direction and fly that way.

This sense of direction, due to magnetic pull, was widely held by the ancients, Macbeth says. We have lost it today through lack of use. There are still aborigines, however, who can tell where the south lies by instinct, and a few Europeans can find north without a compass.

Word 'Bank' From Italy

We get the word "bank" from Italy, where the word "banco" was used to denote a tradesman's counter, and so to a money-changer's bench or table. From this it is believed we also got "bankrupt." When a money-lender was unable to carry on his business his bench was broken up, and he himself was spoken of as a "bancorotta," which came into our language as "bankrupt."

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!
